I am appauled that they would let GMs play favorites on the servers and give out private messages to problem players. we have been having an issue with a rather toxic player for over a month now and this player has been an issue to the community around him for 4 years. but all tickets about him are forwarded to the same singular GM and somehow this player has become privy to private message information. the head GM Enki needs to sort through his GMs and find the corrupt ones and kick them out before they ultimately ruin what is otherwise a good game. if you want fairness at the moment, buy wurm unlimited, at least a private owned server you don't have to worry about such problems.
